

Have you recently tested positive for Zika? Become a part of a Zika clinical study!

Help your community fight the disease! All we need from you is a blood sample.

Join in a CDC-sponsored Zika research study by giving a blood sample. Providing a sample only takes a few minutes and it could help researchers find new ways to diagnose the disease.

Health care providers need better, faster Zika diagnostic tests. Your blood sample could help product developers create those tests. These tests will enable health care providers to find out if their patients have been infected with Zika.

Blood sample donors will be paid $100. You only have to provide a sample one time.

You may qualify if you are:

- an adult over the age of 18 in the United States or 21 in Puerto Rico
- healthy
- weigh at least 110 pounds (50kg)
- not pregnant
- and have tested positive for Zika virus disease
